

WEB PROJECT REPORT

PROMO 2026

DESCRIPTION

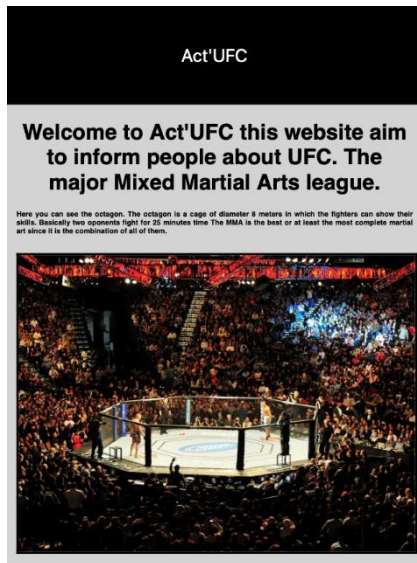

The primary objective of the website we developed for this project was to provide up-to-date information to UFC Fans. In addition to its core functionality, we also offer a few additional features to enhance the user experience. Our entire project is responsive.

HOMEPAGE:

As soon as you arrive on the website, you will be greeted with a simple welcome message and some explanation about the sport. Here you see the mobile view.

On this screenshot you can also see the header with the navigation that had to be implemented in the project. Take a closer look with the following image. You must click on the text logo to display the menu on the phone.

FOOTER:

Moreover, a footer was required. We kept it human, the About button sends the user to the About page of the project. Right underneath it, we have a small copyright disclaimer to decorate the footer. The logo of the project is clickable and sends back to the home page. Footer is the same on different devices.

NEWS:

The news tab is the first that comes right after the one home one. We have about 10 articles of the last events that occurred. The composition is simple: a thumbnail, a title and small recap of the event.

RANKING (TABLE):

Having a table in one of our pages was a must. So, we decided to make a ranking of the different fighters around the world. The screenshot is pretty much self-explanatory. This table doesn't change at all on different devices only the blank spaces get smaller.

UFC Pound for Pound ranking

QUIZZ (JAVASCRIPT):

At first we didn't know how to implement the javascript that was required in the project but we got the idea to make a simple quizz regarding the sport. We thought it could be quite interesting and adds something to the project. There are six questions with three possible responses. We also have a functionality to display the user's score. You can go to the NEXT QUESTION or TRY AGAIN the quizz.

SUGGESTIONS (FORM):

We've added a the contact/suggestions page, which is mainly decorative we haven't made it work. It is the least interesting page of the entire website.

ARTICLE POSTING (EXTRA):

As an extra we made a page to write your own article, you can give it a title, some text and a picture. We used JS for the posting and the post is local. The result is on the next page.

Write your own article and see it appear at the bottom of the news section

CONCLUSION:

Throughout this project, we have learned and expanded our web development skills whether it can be Html, Css or JavaScript. The project has pretty much everything we had learnt since the beginning of this course. Of course, that wasn't enough for us so we still made some improvements on navigation bar for example or the quizz which gives a new functionality to the website.

Overall, we've enjoyed working on this project and we're really happy to deliver something that we consider maybe not perfect because it can still be improved but still very good.
